Musée Romagne 14-18

Best friends.

With the support of many, Jean-Paul and his museum have been given some leeway again and with it new energy and inspiration.

Museum Romagne 14-18 (restricted) open again!

For the right expectations, please pay attention to the following:

- A visit to the museum is fine and safe, but unfortunately for now, only by appointment via info@romagne14-18.com;
- Visitors must bring the mandatory masks themselves and disinfect their hands on arrival and departure. Disinfectant gel is available;
- It is still possible to have a drink, unfortunately you cannot have a (small) meal. It's fine to bring your own lunch. This can be enjoyed with a drink in the restaurant or in the museum garden.

Small snacks such as biscuits, chips or muffins are available;

- 'Guided tours' are again possible, with a maximum of 10 people and also by appointment only.

Thank you for your understanding!

Future developments

Below briefly some activities that require a different approach, especially in connection with the limitations caused by the coronavirus. Modern audiovisual technology will play an important role in this.

Websites and film recordings

The foundation is busy with the websites of the Friends and Musée 14-18 foundation.

At the beginning of August, professional film recordings will be made in the museum and in the Romagne area for the website, social media and marketing, including at the site of Butte de Vauqouis, Montfaucon and some special war cemeteries.

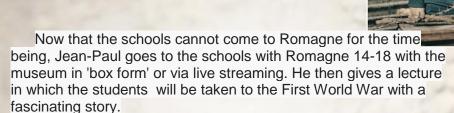

Jean-Paul will be going out with TV producer Huub Stapel for a day soon. He is busy recording his TV program 'Langs de Maas' (Along the river Maas) as he did with the successful series about the river Rhine. Jean-Paul de Vries will act as his guide in the Verdun section.

Musée Romagne 14-18

When schools are interested, they can register for a try-out. Of course we will not forget the Romagne 14-18 college tour. Within short we can report a bit more about the design and the costs.

And then this:

Rob Leenheer, a regular visitor to the museum for many years, recently joined the board. With Rob and his extensive network, we are investing in more marketing knowledge, creativity and increasing the awareness of Museum Romagne 14-18 through broad social media.
